Default says that free selves make choices & create
But there is no evidence in favor of such free selves

Default says things persist beyond their waking sensations
But to say waking is like a dream would also be consistent

Default says symbols are tools used by free selves to describe a pre-existing world
But empirical reflection reveal symbols ARE awareness of a self & of a world in time

This is not to say that non default view, words, is The Truth
But that default is unsupported or unverifiable set of beliefs

Can anything else words say be trusted - including this reasoning?
Who will trust if the "I" is unsure of its own independent existence?

A thorn is used to remove another then both get thrown away
Being totally empty, the bliss of absolute intellectual surrender
